VICAR'S LETTER - A PAUSE FOR THOUGHT

Dear Friends

I was reminded of the phrase Repairer of broken walls recently because our garden wall collapsed last month.

(the photo may not be up to our esteemed editor's high standard but you get the picture).

Repairer of broken walls is given as a title to those who are bombarded and besieged in the verse in Isaiah 58:20, implying that they have the hope that good things will be restored.

Whilst writing, the media is full of images of destroyed buildings with their broken walls as the Ukrainians try to defend their country from invading Russians. By the time you read this, things may be much worse but they certainly need hope and a repairer of broken walls.

Easter holds out hope in repairing our brokenness because Jesus broke through the barrier of death. It was 3 days between the death and resurrection of Jesus. It was just under 4 weeks that our wall was repaired (indeed looks a lot better); but people (as in the days of Isaiah) usually have a lot longer to wait before things improve.

Yet with the distress and terror going on it feels more fitting to stay reflecting on the horror and brokenness of Calvary where Jesus suffered and died rather than rush on to the celebration of Resurrection.

As we contemplate such suffering we might ask ourselves if and how we can help? Christians can own, contribute several ways.

1. Pray
2. Donate to the various charities helping Ukrainians.
3. Remind the world that there is more to life;
that walls will be repaired - giving hope to the oppressed.

May you know the resurrection and restorative hope of Jesus this Easter.

God bless
John

- NEWS FROM THE PEWS -

April already, so we are over a quarter of the way through the year, and it only just seems to have started. February had the storms and we got off relatively lightly in this area apart from the plane on the airfield, and the loss of some trees as far as I am aware.

Going back to March, Mothering Sunday on the 27th March is always special, honouring Mother Church and our mother figures here on earth or passed to the next life. I can remember picking flowers as a child, violets or daffodils to give to my own Mum. She always loved them. I don't think it's allowed these days.

Palm Sunday is on 10th April the start of Holy week, Easter day is of course the following Sunday the service times are in the magazine and outside the Church, all are welcome as always.

On the weekend of the Platinum Jubilee Friday 3rd June to the 5th June St. Nicholas Church would like to honour it by having a Flower Festival and Coronation memorabilia display, if you have any items that we could use for this please let one of the church wardens know. If you have flowers and would like to help decorate you would be most welcome. Please give us a ring.

People of East Challow I hope we can unite and make a huge effort to come together and make Sunday 5th June a Village Celebration at the Cricket club. The details are in the magazine and it would be great to have help and ideas to make this a success.

Many of us in the village are still disappointed that the Park footpath between the village hall and the traffic lights is still closed despite being promised an opening by the end of February, lets hope we don't have to wait much longer. It is really missed.

It has been good to see the building of additional classrooms at St. Nicholas School progressing and the school thriving. Our Open the Book team are still going in to enact Bible stories for the children, it is good to keep the link between the school and the Church.

Great news, we are resuming coffee after the service in Church on a Sunday once a month initially, and hopefully, if all goes well we can do it every week. It's good to be able to chat over a cuppa and a piece of cake.

Although covid restrictions are lifted and life is as back to "normal" as possible, please keep safe for yourselves and others.

Have a very happy Easter.

Liz

TOPICAL TALK

How to have some happiness this April

‘April is the cruellest month,’ wrote TS Eliot at the beginning of his magisterial poem, The Wasteland. And it is a good description of what April may bring us, between the war in Ukraine and soaring energy prices.

But apparently, major problems do not mean that we can’t enjoy anything. According to the ‘science of happiness,’ fuelled by advances in brain-scanning technology and a cultural shift towards seeing happiness as a key index in human development, there is a way through the deep gloom that hangs over this month.

Neuroscientists suggest that even while we are dealing with the big problems of life, we can also make room for ‘small, fleeting moments of fulfilment’. These can range from holding the hand of a loved one, to appreciating the daffodils in your garden, to enjoying a cup of tea with a good friend. Such moments of quiet contentment are ‘joyful vignettes’ which can be the bread and butter of our daily human happiness. As one writer has said: “Hold on to the small moments and the bigger picture of gloom doesn’t have to be as overwhelming as it first seems.”

Children and energy drinks

Up to a third of our children are consuming energy drinks every week, according to recent research by the British Medical Journal.

The study, commissioned by the government, found that some under-18s have as many as five or more a week.

Now experts have found that too many energy drinks lead to physical symptoms such as having trouble sleeping, irritability, headaches, and stomach problems. Having an energy drink on five or more days a week can result in low psychological, physical, educational and overall well-being.

One scientist from the University of York said that the findings “offer support for a Government policy banning the sale of energy drinks to children.”

If my dog doesn't love you, I won't either

Nearly half of all dog owners would not continue to date somebody if their dog did not like that person. And two in five dog owners prefer to date someone who also has a dog.

For those people who go online to look for dates, one in ten dog owners choose potential partners by looking to see if a dog is present in their profile picture. Two thirds of dog owners say that their dog is their best friend, and three in five dog owners admit they prefer to spend the evening at home with their pet than to go out on a date.

The study was carried out by the Kennel Club, who said that it is not surprising that owners rely on their pet's instincts when it comes to selecting a partner. Still, Kennel Club adds that owning a dog should not be seen as an obstacle in finding your soulmate, but a real help. Kennel Club suggested that dog owners might socialise more at doggie events like Crufts, where there are lots of fellow dog lovers.

The new rules of dating

Dating is not what it used to be. Instead of making an effort to dress up and meet somewhere special for the first time, nowadays singletons are increasingly staying at home, and vetting potential partners on Zoom first.

What started during the pandemic seems to be having a lasting impact, with various dating apps reporting that their clients now prefer to have video dates before actually meeting in person. As one relationship dating expert explained: “Single people like having a way to check that their potential date is ‘normal’ before meeting them in real life.”

Another relationship dating expert points out some of the basic benefits of a video call. “Do you like the sound of their voice? Do you feel attracted to them? Can you banter?”

All in all, it seems that preliminary video dates are a good idea – an important stage of the dating journey.

Get going this Spring!

One thing you need to put at the top of your list this Spring is to simply MOVE.

Whether you like gardening, cycling, jogging, walking or any other activity, make certain that you do some of it every day.

As Prof James Goodwin, of the Brain Health Network in London explains, “Only 25 per cent of our ageing – both physical and mental – is determined by our DNA. The other 75 per cent is lifestyle and our environment, over which we have a lot of choice.”

He goes to explain that aerobic exercise indirectly stimulates the brain, and thus rejuvenates it. “Prolonged daily sitting down is the enemy of brain health.”

Prof Goodwin also advises people to develop a healthy routine and stick to it.

“Constantly varying bedtimes, drinking and eating excesses, and irregular habits are bad for you.”

An Easter reflection

“When you die, that’s it. Nothing. Out like a light.” That’s what the man in the pub said, and his mates all nodded, though the one whose mother had died the week before wasn’t really quite so certain. Still, it seemed to make sense.

After all, we know what ‘dead’ means: dead leaves, dead batteries, dead fish, dead pets . . . and dead people, to be honest. While we recognise that it’s all too easy to go from alive to dead, we’ve got serious doubts about the possibility of any return journeys.

Which is why Christians have an uphill task at Easter. Jesus was a great man, and people want to remember how He died. Fair enough. But it starts getting complicated when Christians insist that Jesus died - but didn’t stay dead - in fact, that He’s alive now. That ‘return journey’ has happened, they say.

That’s the problem about Easter, Christians persisting in what sounds like a ridiculous belief. If they just dropped the resurrection bit and concentrated on the wonderful teaching of Jesus and His example of generosity, compassion and love then everybody would find Christianity much more believable. Wouldn’t that make sense? And wouldn’t that fill the churches again?

Well it might (or, more likely, it might not). But in any case, the trouble is that it wouldn’t be Christianity at all. The faith of Christians actually depends on the resurrection of Jesus, and always has done, right from the earliest days.

After the crucifixion the body of Jesus was taken down from the cross by some of His friends and put in a rock tomb with a heavy stone rolled across the doorway. Yet the following Sunday, the third day after His death, His followers claimed that they had met Him, seen Him, talked with Him.

So certain was their belief that nothing could make them recant it. Not ridicule, not torture, not even death itself. They couldn’t deny His resurrection, because they were absolutely convinced that it had happened. Plenty of clever and powerful people at the time had a vested interest in proving them wrong. It shouldn’t have been difficult to prove that a dead man had stayed dead, especially when you have at your disposal the resources of the greatest empire in history. Yet they didn’t do it, because it couldn’t be done.

Still today millions of people all over the world believe that Jesus did in fact rise from the dead. They include brilliant scientists and philosophers as well as plenty of ‘ordinary’ men and women of all ages. They believe it because they respect the witness of those first Christians, and because in many cases their own lives have been transformed by a relationship with Jesus - a relationship that wouldn’t make sense if He were dead!

Christians don’t put their faith in a dead hero from the past, but in someone who is alive and active in their own lives and in the world. That, in a nutshell, is the real message of Easter.

St George of the Golden Legend

The Saint of an English Army before he was Patron Saint of England, St George may have been a soldier, but he was no Englishman. Some stories say that he was an officer in the Roman army under Diocletian, who refused to abandon his faith during the Terror, and was martyred at Lydda in Palestine about the year 300 AD - supposedly 23rd April. Over the years St George became the example of a Christian fighting-man, a powerful helper against evil powers affecting individual lives. He was the soldier-hero of the Middle Ages, of whom remarkable deeds were reported.

In the Golden Legend of the 13th century, Jacobus de Voragine gave St George a handsome write-up. The story runs thus:

One day, St George rode up to the heathen city of Sylene in Lybia, where he found the citizens in great distress. A neighbouring dragon had forced them to surrender two sheep each day for its dinner, and when the sheep gave out, two of their children; and now they were about to sacrifice the King's daughter, dressed as if for her wedding. St George encountered the little party by a stagnant lake, where the dragon lived, and persuaded the sobbing Princess to tell him why she was so miserable. At that moment the dragon appeared, looking inexpressibly revolting. St George charged forwards and drove his spear into the dragon's gaping mouth. To everyone's amazement, he tumbled the monster over and over.

Then St George borrowed the Princess's girdle, tied it round the dragon's neck, and persuaded her to lead it back to Sylene herself. The sight of her approaching with the befuddled dragon on its makeshift lead emptied the town. When the inhabitants timidly crept back, St George promised to behead the dragon if they would all believe in Jesus Christ and be baptised.

It was a most effective form of evangelism, for everybody said 'yes' at once. So, 15,000 people were baptised, and four carts were commissioned to remove the dragon's body.

St George thus became a symbol of the war against evil, and he is usually portrayed trampling the dragon of sin under his horse's hoofs. The Crusaders had a vision of him helping them against the Saracens at Antioch, during the first Crusade, and so brought the story of St George back with them from Palestine.

Presently England puts herself under the protection of the Saint.

A red cross on a white field is the flag of St George.

St. Georges Day
23rd April 2022

75 years since the school age was raised

It was 75 years ago, on 1st April 1947, that the school leaving age in the UK was raised to 15.

This had been planned in 1939 but was delayed because of the outbreak of war. The Education Act of 1944 put it on the Statute Book, and it was brought into effect in 1947.

The same Act created the grammar school / secondary modern system, although grammar schools had existed for many years before that. The 1944 Act meant that 11-year-olds would sit exams to decide whether they were suitable for an academic or practical education. This was a good idea but poorly executed, which led to those not in grammar schools being regarded as “failures” instead of differently gifted; this was exacerbated by many from poorer schools who passed the exam not being able to take up their places in grammar schools.

In due course this imbalance led to the comprehensive system, with most grammar schools being abolished. The school leaving age was raised to 16 in 1972.

The architect of the 1944 Act, Rab Butler, pushed it through despite Prime Minister Winston Churchill's objecting to getting involved in all the intricacies and “party politics” of it in wartime. The main problem was the integration of church schools into the state system, which had been attempted unsuccessfully before. But Butler persisted, writing later that, having seen the Promised Land, “I was damned if I was going to die in the Land of Moab”.

One result was the establishment of voluntary aided and voluntary controlled church schools, both of which had at least some of their costs met by the local authority, but differed in the amount of control the authority had. The Act also stipulated a daily act of worship in all schools – although it is still required, this rarely happens today.

Maundy Money

Every year the Queen distributes silver coins at a special service on Maundy Thursday. It is part of a tradition dating back many centuries, where the Royal Family took part in ceremonies washing the feet of poor people and giving gifts.

The Royal Maundy Service itself began in 1662, when Charles II gave out coins. The ones that the Queen gives out each year bear the portrait of Her Majesty designed for her coronation in 1953, even though the image on ordinary circulating coinage has since been changed four times.

According to the royal.uk website, the Queen decided early on in her reign that Maundy money should not just be distributed to the people of London. And so, for many years she has visited various cathedrals or abbeys to give gifts to local people. Recipients of Maundy money are nominated by their local dioceses for contributions to their local church and community.

During the service, the Queen distributes gifts according to the number of years she has lived: for example, when she turned 80 she distributed 80 pence worth of Maundy money to 80 men and 80 women in recognition for their contribution to community and to the church.

Last year, in 2021, the service was cancelled because of Covid. Instead, the Maundy money was blessed at the Chapel Royal, St James's Palace, before being posted to recipients alongside a letter from The Queen.

Call for development sites

Amongst the various potential development sites surrounding East Challow, V041 (the large field between Lydsee Gate and Challow Park, opposite KA's West Site) is of concern as it will effectively obliterate the gap between Wantage and East Challow. Stockham residents organised a meeting with David Johnston that East Challow parish council members attended. This was a useful meeting where the MP sympathised with our position and it was clear that the level of development also concerns him. A discussion followed on housing land supply figures which indicated that, in the western vale sub-area, house building has exceeded proposed numbers. He has been in contact with Michael Gove to try and insist that new houses adopt environmental standards that exist at the time of building and not at the time when the planning application was approved.

Speeding update

Following the meeting with Mark Francis of Highways, he has forwarded some of the Action Points from our meeting on to his line manager but no response from him yet! The issues included resurfacing the main road near the bend, cleaning and marking the position of the bollards with white lines and a SID (the Speed Indicator Device as they have in East Hanney) in exchange for 2 VASs (what we currently have in the village). Highways are meeting Crest Nicholson this week about the S278 works which could fund all this.

Contact with the Wasborough Estate

We have contacted the Wasborough Estate to (i) remind them that they agreed to clear the massed vegetation along Woodhill Brook during 2021, which would reduce flooding risk on the A417 at the entrance to Woodhill Lane. This has not been done as yet, and to (ii) mention that they are required to keep footpaths clear on their land north of the village and we hope that this will be done before the height of this summer. This will open up extensive new walking/dog walking opportunities.

BOATs

Cornhill, Green and Shelley's Lanes remain closed. I have asked the concrete slabs to be separated allowing horses, pedestrians and m'cycles through and Highways have been meeting to discuss this.

MacTaggart and Mickel – footpath

We have been seriously concerned about the footpath through this site. I spoke to the site manager on Feb 14th and was assured that it would be opened by the end of Feb. This has not happened and he told the County Council that they would need another 6 weeks! I have written to the M+M board of directors to complain and I was told by them that 6 weeks was required. I have replied that that was unacceptable and that when it is opened we also need to have it cleared before it is opened to the public. I have contacted the Herald and Oxford Mail about this because we seem to have very little leverage with these developers.

Refuse Bins

Please remove your food, rubbish and recycling bins from the kerbside as soon as you can after they have been emptied by returning them to your own property for safety - they are easily blown into the roads which can cause accidents, damage to cars and obstruct emergency vehicles.
